NEW YORK, Nov. 28.-It was stated this morning that Samuel C. Seely, the trusted who, with an accomplice, supposed to have been Frederick Baker, stole $354,000 from the bank's funds, had been located in the house of a friend near Jersey City, and would be arrested to-day and put in jail. But at 2 p. m. the bank officials said that Swely's whereabouts were still unknown to them. Lawyer Lyman, who is suppose told of Seely, was not at his office up to late hour in the day.

The remains of Frederick Baker, the alleged accomplice of Seely, were interred to-day in Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn. The body was accompanied from the Baker dence at Sands Point only by the sons Frederick R. and George Baker.

SEELY'S MODE OF LIFE. There have come to light amazing things bout this methodical book-keeper, who had so fine a reputation for probity; who was thought to live on a dead level of sewas thought to live on a dead level of serious, simple honesty. His home life was simple and charming. He had a pleasant home, a wife who adored him and whom he seemed to worship, with a child to bring out the full measure of affection. He left his home for the bank, a slender, serious-looking man, with a thin face, sober eyes and a long, drooping mustache. His stooped shoulders, the slight elevation to one side, told of his devotion to the great ledgers over which he pored all day long. He was an admirable book-keeper, a very jewel of a book-keeper, his employers thought. No man knew his business more thoroughly. All day he was wrapped up in those long debits and credits, careful as to the exquisite neatness of his books, making his figures with delicate precision, and then hurrying home to his wife, in Brooklyn. Occasionally he did not come home for dinner. Then his wife knew that he was detained at the bank. This was the rule on week days. On Sundays, with his wife on his arm, he decorously went to church. rious, simple honesty. His home life was Bowery to Grand street before a recognition took place. At other times he would meet his charmers within a block of the bank as early as 4 p. m. and go uptown by the L. "His favorite plan was to make an appointment for a late afternoon meeting and go to dinner at a prominent table d'hote restaurant, using a popular one on Union Square on several occasions. Then in a coach he would take a long ride in Central Park, but always dismissed the coach and hurried away home by 11 p. m. I do not know that he ever stayed out all night; certainly not more than once. When he had occasion to use a hotel he always selected one of a fairly good standing, registering, of

He never went to a theater or place of public amusement, but once put in an aftersoon shopping with a companion in some of the most prominent Sixth avenue department stores. He was a bundle of contradictions. He would talk temperance and try to dissuade his associates from even an indulgence in claret at dinner; yet he would drink a cocktail himself and, if pressed, open wine freely."

YET HE STOLE $354,000! What has become of all this money? Usually, when a man steals so large a sum, there are external evidences of the suddenly-acquired wealth. It is squandered as quickly, as it comes. It

When the bank learned of the defalcation it set out to discover the thieves and to seek for some of the stolen property. They were surprised to find that Seely had nothing. They turned their attention to Baker. He was generally believed to be a large holder of real estate. They searched for days and found nothing that stood in Baker's name. The only thing they found was a house in this city, presumably the was a house in this city, presumably the one in which they lived, which stood in Mrs. Baker's name. But later a discovery was made. This is what Mr. Angel has to say about

An interesting thing in conection with Seely's stealings is the exposition of the ease with which any city bank employing the same method of bookkeeping, can be robbed by an employe who is neither President, cashier, director or even teller, but merely an under clerk; comparatively speaking. There are many banks in the city which still cling to the antiquated system of a single set of ledgers—known as the Boston system—which the Shoe and Leather only decided to abandon ten days ago.

Seely and his accomplice could never have stolen $354,000 had an examination of the two bookkeepers' ledgers been made at any time. Seely was the only man who ever went over them. The directors took his statements as to what the ledger accounts showed. Seely's fictitious figures, on a sheet of paper, were given to the bank examiner when that official made his formal and regular visits to the bank. Whenever the directors made affidavit to the regular bank statement and swore that the bank's surplus was so many thousand dollars, they based their oath entirely on their faith in Seely and in other employes of his grade. Nobody but Seely ever balanced the accounts in the ledgers which Seely kept.

And Seely, who needed but one accomplice to steal a third of a million dollars, and who could have stolen a million if he had chosen, was a quiet Brookyn man, without antecedents, either god, had or indifferent. His salary was $4.61 a week.

This is what Mr. Angel has to say about it:

"The man whom Seely named to me as his confederate I have known for twenty-five years, and I always looked upon him as a man of probity and honor. He was supposed to have a large practice, particularly a real estate practice, which netted him a fine income. Of late years he gained the reputation of being rich and of having large real estate holdings.

"If the bank had been particularly anxlous to do so, I think it could have arrested the confederate before he reached Flushing. I am informed that the officials made a vigorous effort to determine the property he owned, and it was found that none of it stood in his name. It may be that they will yet find property which legally belongs to him. They found one piece of property in this city, I am told, which stands in the name of his wife.

"Whether the confederate has no property or whether he has schemed in order to evade the law I am not informed. It has come to me that it is believed that nearly all the money that Seely stole from the bank was invested in real estate by the confederate, who has used a dummy in order to conceal the transactions. Some of the money may have been lost in speculation, but I believe that the greater part of it is securely invested.

Mrs. Burns Says She Had the Pitezs Children. President Cleveland's Message

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 28.-Interest in the Heimes-Pitesel $10,000 insurance swindle lies now in the whereabouts of Pitezel and his children, whom Holmes says he left in charge of their father near Detroit. Pitezel, Holmes claims, he saw last near Detroit. Learning that detectives were on his track, he concealed Pitezel in a trunk, but the trunk is a contract of the same track. put the trunk in an express wagon and in this way carried his partner out of Detroit to a house in the suburbs of the city, where the trunk was opened and Pitezel released. Holmes states, also, that he then went back to Detroit for the children, who had been left in charge of a Mrs. Burns, took them out of the house secretly and placed them in possession of their father. That was the last he saw of Pitezel and his children.

ont of the house secretly and placed them in possession of their father. That was the last he saw of Pitezel and his children. Holmes says it was understood between them that Pitezel would go to New York, but he has not since heard from him.

The developments of the last few days substantiate Holmes' story in very many particulars. Officers of the swindled Fidelity Insurance Co. are in possession of facts which show that the Detroit police have investigated Holmes' story. Mrs. Lucinda Burns was located in a cheap boarding house, and although she first denied that she had ever seen Holmes or the Pitezel children, she finally admitted that Holmes brought the two children to her on Oct. 13 and that they were named respectively Amy and Anne. The younger one was healthy, but the elder was thin and pale-looking. Mrs. Burns knew nothing about them except that they had never been in Detroit before, and had just arrived after a four hours' trip on the train. The girls remained a little over a week and vanished suddenly, leaving a $2 board bill unpaid. Mrs. Burns only clue to their disappearance was the sound of a man's footfall in the second story on the day they left.

This accounts for two of the missing children, but throws no light on the whereabouts of the 12-year-old girl who came here with Lawyer Howe of St. Louis to identify the corpse of the supposed Pitezel.

The trunk in which Pitezel was concealed and taken out of Detroit was found, and is now in the hands of the insurance officials, the numerous breathing-holes bored in it substantiating Holmes' story that Pitezel had occupied it upon that memorable trip.

Every person concerned in the case in this city has a different idea as to where the children and Pitezel now are—if they are alive. The mysterious retaining fee, alleged to have come from Chicago sources, which was presented to Lawyer Sheemaker in Holmes' shealf, has created considerable excitement; and it is now hinted that Pitezel himself, who has undoubtedly done mary bold deeds in this city, delivere a little point at the chin in the latest French style.

Such boldness on Piters wart come almost incredible; but the charge of conspiracy carries with it a trifling punishment. Two years are all that Holmes' attorneys expect him to get on the conspiracy charge; and they claim that, by a variety of alibis and other proof, they can easily disprove the charge of murder without producing either Holmes or the New York doctor who, Holmes says, sent him the body found in the Callowhill street house. Detectives have tried to locate the expressman who delivered the trunk containing the body. They have been unsuccessful, and are now inclined to believe that either Holmes or Pitezel took the trunk himself in a hack or a wagon, without recourse to the express.

It is only the latter that has been compromised; but, according to the acknowledgment of the officers of the Government, this will have an effect on the criminal prosecution. When the frauds were exposed, in 1894 and 1885, Benson had earned $1,100,000 from the work of deputy surveyors, and he had further claims of nearly $4,000. The Government held all of the surveys and refused payment. Civil suits for the recovery of $338,000 were begun, and indictments were found against Benson and his party. The claims held by Benson were assigned by him to the Nevada Bank and to Dr. Pierce. The aggregate amount was $330,000, of which the bank holds claims for $250,000 and the capitalist for $90,000.

HE MAY NOT SPRING A NEW FINANCIAL FLAN ON CONGRESS.

Carltale's Proposition Will Be Submitted With Suggestions-This Part of the Message Will Be a Disappointment-Deal of Absurd Mystery About the President's Condition.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 28.-The President has been and still is a much sicker man than the Administration people would have the public believe. His condition is not alarming, but it is a fact that the severe attack of rheumatic gout which followed the sprain of his left ankle practically incapacitated him for work on his message for several days.

During the past three days Mr. Cleveland has suffered much pain from his swollen leg, and to obtain relief has remained in bed much of the time. Not that he has been unable to rise, but he has been unwilling to be disturbed. Propped up in bed with pillows, his position has been much easier. He has sat up in a large padded chair, with a soft rest for his foot, several hours each day, sat up in a large padded chair, with a soft rest for his foot, several hours each day, but there has been little relief from the pain, and he has been unable to accomplish much work.

The recilining couch which was sent out to Woodley yesterday is expected to give more comfort to the President when he is assisted from his bed to take up the preparation of his message. The foot rest on the couch can be fixed at any angle to best give ease. The couch is on rollers, and the President is helped from the bed to it, and wheeled to his desk in the study. Even with this sick-room device Mr. Cleveland remained out of bed not more than three hours yesterday. His leg is greatly swollen, and he is unable to use it.

The President has had these attacks of gout before, but this is probably the most aggressive one he has suffered. Dr. O'-Relly is in daily attendance on the President. It is said that he expects that Mr. Cleveland will be able to move about and possibly come to this city in a few days.

The President is said to be cheerful with all his pain, and has always been found willing when called upon by members of his Cabinet to discuss public questions. One or two Cabinet officers have visited Woodley each day for several days past.

Mr. Carlisle has spent the greater part of his atternoons with the President in going over the financial scheme that the Secreary will recommend in his report.

Mr. Cleveland has been unable to do much writing, and the fact that his message is far from complete is said to have given him much uneasiness. It is possible that the message will not be transmitted to Congress on the usual day, but of course every effort will be made to prevent the custom from being broken at this time.

It comes from a high Administration official that the President's message will be a disappointment to those who have expected that he will deal exclusively with the financial question. Whether Mr. Cleveland is all heas to a disappointment to those who have expected that he will deal exclusively with the financial inct, the President will make no independent suggestions of a financial nature. Mr. Cleveland may discuss the Carlisle plan at some length, but no original ideas will be advanced. Only a few weeks ago close friends of the President, and, in fact, two members of the Cabinet, said that Mr. Cleveland intended to present a "ringing message" on the financial situation. But, from all accounts, this has all been changed within a few days.

That the President has been sicker than was supposed cannot be denied, but there is no telling what denial may be put out at the White House. So much mystery has been thrown about the President's accident and his subsequent attack of gout, and so much misrepresentation has been indused in by the Administration people, that it has been almost impossible to get at the President's true condition from officials who are expected to give out the facts. When Mr. Cleveland sprained his ankle it was denied at the White House, and when the story first appeared that the President was set down as a silly statement. Why all this absurd misrepresentation, if nothing worse, no one assumes to give an intelligent explanation.

Brutal Treatment of a White Woman

NEWPORT, Ark., Nov. 28.—Last night, about 10:30 o'clock, three negro wenches went to the house of Mrs. Sykes, a white woman, called her out of the house and proceeded to give her a terrible beating with rocks and sticks, cutting frightful gashes in her head and face, and otherwise seriously injuring her. Not being content with this, they took her to a railroad, laid her across the track, and gave her a terrible lashing with a leather belt. When picked up she was almost unconscious. Her assailants were arrested.

Then she cried a little and Mr. Hamilton, who had been her husband's business partner for several years, endeadored to console her.

"I never could understand how a man like Armitage could be taken in by such a woman as Mrs. Stiepel," said Mr. Hamilton. "We plagued him about it a great deal, and it got so that when Mrs. Stiepel would come here to the office to see him he would run as soon as he caught sight of her and conceal himself in the closet.

A RAY OF LIGHT.

Mrs. Armitage clapped her hands excited by. "Mr. Hamilton," she said, "you have described minutely the woman who came to my house in Chicago and introduced herself to me as Mrs. Hammer. She wore that identical gray cloak and her appearance and broken speech were exactly as you described Mrs. Stiepel, I see it all now. The woman who came to me as Mrs. Hammer and told me about my, husband and Mrs. Stiepel, and who tried so hard to perstade me not to look for Mr. Armitage but to make up my mind that I had been deserted and sue for a divorce, was none other than Mrs. Stiepel, while the woman who passed herself as Mrs. Stiepel last night was some person who she had employed so as to prevent me from learning of the deception she had practiced upon me. The woman must be a devil to so deceive a sorrowing wife. I never knew before that there were such wicked women in the world. But I understand her now, and I know she meant what she shid when she told another woman that she would resort to anything to get my husband away from me. Now I am convinced that my husband is loyal to me, and that he is not only not infatuated with this Stiepel woman but that he has done all in his power to rid himself of her. She made him desperate with her persecutions and he fled into concealment. I am going to see this woman and I am going to get at the bottom of this matter. I will stand no more deceit and lying. I will free Mr. Armitage from her machinations, and I will clear up the other scandalous stories that have been circulated for the purpose of ruining him."

Mrs. Armitage and the Post-Dispatch reporter who accompanied her the night before to Mrs. Stiepel's house, again started for 1900 Lami street, this time with the determination of seeing Mrs. Stiepel in person instead of by proxy, and of hearing from her own lips the story of her relations with Mr. Armitage and the Post-Dispatch reson instead of by proxy, and of hearing from her own lips the stor

She tried to close the door, but Mrs. Armitage had inserted the toe of her boot beneath it, and was holding it ajar.

"Well, I want to know a great deal more about this business, as you call it," Mrs. Armitage repiled, with firmness; "and, what is more. I intend to find out everything before I quit this house."

"No." "How long have you lived with Mrs. Stiepel?"
"No." my dear, I thank you for your truthfuness, and I want you to tell me honestly whether or not Mrs. Stiepel is in this house. If she is I am going to see her. If she is not I will wait for her."
"Honestly, ma'am, she is not at home. She went down town right afer dinner and will not be back until 6 o'clock. I can not let you in now, for she would be very angry with me, but if you will come back at 6 o'clock I think you can see her."
Though somewhat in doubt as to whether the girl was telling the truth about Mrs. Stiepel not beling in, Mrs. Armitage decided to wait until 6 o'clock, but to watch every street car for her coming. In the meantime she and the reporter made inquiries among the neighbors about Mrs. Stiepel and her household. It was learned from several that the girl who had first represented herself as Mrs. Stiepel was a trusted servant who had been with her a long time and who had taken care of the house during the five months that Mrs. Stiepel was absent in Europe last spring and summer. When Mrs. Stiepel returned she found that Lena had married William Dietz, who also stopped at the house while she was away.
Mrs. Armitage and the reporter watched the street-cars until 6 o'clock without seeing any signs of Mrs. Stiepel, and Mrs. Armitage, who all along had not believed that Mrs. Stiepel was not in her house, decided to make another call. Lena Dietz again came to the door, and this time peasantly invited the callers in, saying, however, that Mrs. Stiepel had not yet returned, though she was momentarily expecting her. The visitors sat in the sitting-room and waited a long while, and still Mrs. Stiepel was not in her house, decided to make another call. Lena Dietz again came to the door, and this time peasantly invited the callers in, saying, however, that Mrs. Stiepel and how her and the dishes cleared away, and then Mrs. Stiepel's 15-year-old daughter, Jenny, came into the room and played on the piano. Mrs. Armitage talked with her kindly, first ab ing visited her is Chicago. Mrs. Armitage uttered a low exclamation and started forward.

"MARIE HAFFMER."

The woman heard the exclamation and turned and looked into the sitting-room. She saw the visitors and instantly recognized them. Her eyes fashed angrily. "Mein Gott im himmel!" she exclaimed. For an instant she stood transfixed, and then she turned and fied into the front part of the house, calling out in an angry voice for Lena to come to her.

Lena looked frightened as she passed through the room and went to her mistress. Then the visitors heard Mrs. Stiepel abusing the girl for permitting "that woman to come in." and Lena was ordered to put them out. Then the girl showed her spunk. "I'll do nothing of the kind." she said. "If you have got any more dirty business to do, you'll do it yourself. Last night I sat for over two hours and told lie after lie to please you, but I am through with that sort of thing, and now you have got to face that woman yourself."

It was nearly ten minutes before Mrs. Stiepel could summon up sufficient courage to face the injured wife whom she had practiced so many heartless deceptions upon, but finally she came into the room like an avalanche and, brazeniy confronting Mrs. Armitage, exclaimed: "Well, madam, what is it you want with me?"

Her savage maniner fairly took away Mrs. Armitage's breath and for a minute she simply gazed steadfastly at the woman and uttered not a word. Mrs. Stiepel cowered beneath her gaze and got red and white by turns. Mrs. Armitage was as pale as death. Slowly rising and extending her long arm until her gloved finger was within a few inches of the woman's face, she said: "So, you are Mrs. Stiepel cowered beneath er as Mrs. Haffmer? What was your object in playing such deceptions on me?"

"In never was away from my own house," you are Mrs. Stiepel. Why did you come to my house in Chicago and introduce your-self to me as Mrs. Haffmer? What was your object in playing such deceptions on me?"

"I never was in your house in Chicago; I never was away from my own house, Mrs. Stiepel replied doggedly. She had evidently made up her mind to bluff her accuser down.

"That is a wicked lie, Mrs. Stiepel, and you know it," Mrs. Armitage said in a calm, low voice and with remarkable composure. "If you will take off that blond wig and show the gray hairs beneath, you will look exactly as you did when you came to my house last Thursday to try and persuade me not to search for my husband. You remained with me all of that afternoon and evening and slept with me that night in my bed. I never closed my eyes once and never once took them off of you. You, also, remained awake and I knew that you were watching me. I laid all night by your side and trembled with fear, thinking you might attempt to do me harm. Had you done so you could not have escaped, for I had securely fastened all of the doors and hid the keys where no one but myself could possibly find them. The next morning I went with you to the depot and you promised to show me letters written by my husband that you said were in a trunk, and when we got there I found that you had been lying to me all of the time and that you had no trunk. You took the train back to St. Louis.

"Why did you do this? Was it to drive me further away from my husband so that you could try further to ensnare him into your meshes? If it was, your folly was as ridiculous as it was cruel, for my husband woman as you."

Mrs. Stiepel shrunk back before the indignant, outraged woman and her only reply was that Mrs. Armitage's husband was a cur and a cowand and that if she wanted to she could show bushels of letters that she had received from him. Then she strode out of the room and into the kind a bang she ordered Lena to get her some supper. For half an hour she sat eating and she called up two monstrous dogs from the cellar and terspersed with swear words and abuse of Armitage. Once, when she was telling of the disgrace that her conduct had brought upon her daughter and her family, she even shed tears. Her story is substantially this: She met Armitage two years ago last September, and he induced her, against the advice of Mr. Rassieur, her lawyer, to invest 15,000 in the Aetna Loan Co. They became ntimate, and when she got into physical mouble she independent of persuade Armitage to marry her. For a long time september, and the war on and she realized that she could not much onger conceal her condition from her neighbors and friends, she became more impatient. At last he confessed to her that he was married and could never make her, his wife. This was last December, a month before Armitage married his present wife. She doubted him, and when he told her that he was married in Chicago she sent to the County Clerk in that city for a copy of the marriage license. The only record that could be found was the marriage of John-Armitage, and then Mrs. Stiepel knew that she had been deceived, and still believing that Armitage could make her his wife if he desired, she renewed her demands. It was then that he did get married, and to his present wife.

She says that he tried to persuade her to have an operation performd, but when the would wreck her health. Last April she went to Europe and her child was born in Germany. It is a girl, and is now with her parents, she says. She said that after her return Armitage promised to pay her sib a month toward the support of their child, but has never paid a cent. At last she became so indignant that she decided to have Armitage arrested, and he promised her war his wife as quickly as possible and marry her. She had believed he would keep this promise, and kept a close watch on him.

On Sept. 11 she says that he called at her house and told her that he had that devent his wife to Chicago and that say that he called at her house and told her that he had that devent his wife to Chicago and that say and marry her. She had believed he would keep this promise, and kept a close watch on him.

On Sept. Il she says that he called at her house and told her that he had that day sent his wife to Chicago, and that as soon as a divorce could be procured he would make his promise good. He was crushed and dejected, she said, and would not look her in the face once during the visit. The last time she said in was on Oct. 3. He came to the house and told her that he was going the next morning to San Antonio, Tex., and asked her to keep his whereabouts a secret. She told him she would go to the train to see him off, and then he said that he might not go until evening. She said she would go to the depot in the evening also, and he replied that perhaps he might not get away until the day following. She went three times to the depot, but never saw him again. She searched for him without success, and the only trace she has been able to find indicates that he went to Colorado Springs. On the evening of Oct. 20, a Miss Essle Nixon, living at 3008 Locust street, met Armitage on the street with a valies and when she inquired where he was going he replied to Colorado Springs and asked her to tell no one.

"Wher did you learn that my husband had lived in Dallas under the assumed name of Throop?" asked Mrs. Armitage, who hal sat very quiet while Mrs. Stiepel was telling her story.

"He came to my house."

"Is it not a fact that you are paying Mr. Slater to circulate such stories about my husband?"

Mrs. Stiepel did not answer. Mrs. Armitage arose to go. As she reached the door, she turned to Mrs. Stiepel and very quietly said:

she was sure he could clear up the accussions that he had ever masqueraded under an assumed name.

"Thave all his books and papers at home," she said, "and in books he had in Cleveland more than twenty years ago, his name is written Harry Armitage. During the time I have known him, we have met many of his frieds of former years, including a gentleman with whom he was very intimate in Texas and not one of these have ever indicated that he had ever gone under the name of Throop. Years ago my husband was in business in New York and in 1872 he graduated from the medical college at Cleveland. Instead of practicing medicine, as he had intended, he came to St. Louis and, for a long time, he had a music store at the corner of Seventh and Olive streets. At one time, he had a music store at the corner of Seventh and Olive streets. At one time, he had a music store at the corner of Seventh and Olive streets. At one time, he had a music store at the corner of Seventh and Shaw's Gardens.

"Subsequently he was in business in Kannas City, in Dallas and in New Orleans. In Dallas he represented Mr. Schmer, the plano man, and in recent years he frequently visited the Schmers at Collinaville, Ill. They knew him as Armitage, and this makes me more certain than anything else that he could not have gone under an assumed name in Dallas. I am almost as certain that he went by his right name of Armitage in New Orleans, for Mr. Bodkins, his partner at that time and a diamond importer now in Chicago, told me so. After leaving New Orleans Mr. Armitage was for some time in business in Colorado Springs, and came from that place to St. Louis. I should not be surprised if he is in Colorado Springs now, for he had property interests there, and the threats Mrs. Stiepel made of having him arrested may have caused him to go anywhere that she could not find him. I am going home to wait his comins."

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov 28 .- David H Throop was a resident of Little Rock in 1876 and was the agent of the Singer Sewing Machine Co. He was a young man of good address and was quite a favorite among the ladies. He was successful in business and was liberal, but not extravagant in entertaining his friends. Nearly all his evenings he spent in visiting young ladies and for many months seemed to have no attachment for any particular one. In the winter of 1876 he biossomed forth as one of the swell young men of the town, dressed rather loud and became engaged to Miss Cecilia McCormick, a beautiful girl, whose mother was a dressmaker. Mrs. McCormick regarded him as an adventurer and, when he sought her daughter's hand in marriage, she forbade him admittance to the house. The couple were desperately in love with each other and, to prevent an elopement, Mrs. McCormick took her daughter to Dallas, Tex., where she was married a year later to a young man who is now a banker in London. Several months later Throop was married in this city to Miss Emma Plerson.

Very little is known here of the lady, as she was a resident of Little Rock but a short time previous to her marriage to Throop. The couple left Little Rock in a few weeks after they were married. and was liberal, but not extravagant in

A NEW PLATFORM.

Senator Tom Hathaway's Idea of What Missouri Democrats Need.

State Senator Thos. T. Hathaway has reached the conclusion "that it is about time for the Democrats of Missouri to build a new platform for future guidance, rather than worry themselves about selecting the proper man for this or that office. Having this end in view he announces himself a candidate for the office of Governor of Missouri, not on his individual merits but on the principles of a platform which he has formulated, and which are substantially as follows:

has formulated, and which are substantially as follows:

1. The repeal of the Civil Service law, as inimical to a popular form of government and leading directly to the establishment of an aristocracy of office-holders. There must be rotation in office.

2. The establishment of a free political public library in every County Court-house.

3. The coinage of silver and gold to the full extent of commercial demands. No gold coin to be of a smaller denomination than $20 or paper currency smaller than $5. This is to encourage the circulation of silver.

4. Revision of the immigration laws and the imposition of a tax on each emigrant.

5. Everyone must be an American, and not base his claims for office on birth or religious bellef.

6. A tariff both for revenue and for the eligious belief.
6. A tariff both for revenue and for the protection of American labor. A robber protection of American labor. A robber tariff and free trade are both to be condemned. A law between these two extremes should be enacted.

Mr. Hathaway announces his candidacy with the understanding that he is willing to withdraw in favor of a better man who will represent the above principles.

our vessel filled and sank in less than two minutes."

The Reading at once lowered boats and succeeded in picking up several of the crew who were clinging to the rigging. The tug Wesley A. Gove, which was cruising in the vicinity, also hastened to aid in the work of rescue. Four of the crew were clinging to the rastened of the submerged vessel. Another was taken from a booby hatch nearly an hour later. One man had also succumbed from the masthead before the rescuers reached the scene. Four men who were asleep in their bunks went down with the ship and were not seen afterward. Capt. Reed of the Reading says the collision was unavoidable. He was coming from Philadelphia with a cargo of coal, with the Suffolk intow, and was proceeding at a moderate rate of speed when the schooner appeared in the darkness. The Benson was of 8 tons burden and was owned in Providencetown.

Sec. 2. For the purpose of carrying into effect the ordinance there is hereby appropriated out of the purpose of operating the shoe shop and also sent on its way towards passage per the usual routine.

Mr. Ferris stated that he was not committed to the bill. When asked if the output of the proposed shoeshop would be put on the market he said:

"I suppose so. I am not in a position to discuss the bill, because I have not familiarized myself with its operations, in case it become a law. In infer that there will be the same opposition from organized labor to the goods made at the proposed Reform School shop being placed in competition with their product as there is to convict-made merchandise. I suppose that the object of Charity Commissioner Grenner and Superintendent Guibor, who, I understand, drafted the bill, is to provide a trade for inmates of the Reform School. In other words, the reformation and improvement of the boys is the primary consideration, and the sale of the output of the shoeshop in which they learn their trade only a secondary matter. If it should be shown that this reformation would follow I would not be influenced by the opposition of the labor element to the bill, if any should develop."

given the time of the convention.

Under this head the only business reported to the congress was a resolution offered by Delegate Dunie of Washington to the effect that Congress be asked to at once provide for the proper defense of Puget Sound. No other miscellaneous business being brought up, the chair announced that under a resolution passed yesterday two hours would be given over to a discussion of "staple agriculture." The discussion of staple agriculture." The discussion staple agriculture of the California delegation.

Upon this the California delegation sent up a resolution which was to form the besis of discussion, to the effect that as protection was granted to American manufacturers for the purpose of increasing the price of manufactured articles, some such protection should be granted to staple agriculture. But the ordinary idea af protection does not protect staple agriculture because its products are exports. Therefore, the resolution asked that the Government be asked to pay a premium on agricultural exports.

When the president asked how the discussion should be conducted, Senator Johnston of the California delegation said he would like to have most of the time given to Delegate Lubens to read a lengthy paper in support of the resolution. Delegate Fairback of Missouri was on his feet at once, and objected to any discussion of such a resolution under the head of staple agriculture. He claimed it was a question of protection; a tariff question. Senator Johnston held it was not, and it was then suggested that such portions of the resolution as seemed to refer to tariff be omitted. as protection which raised the price of manufactured articles sold in the United States.

A resolution was here offered by a delegate from Kansas to the effect that the Congress favors the deepening of the canals and rivers from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic, the construction of a canal from the St. Lawrence to the Hudson Rivers, and canals connecting Lake Superior and the Mississippi River and Lake Eric with the Ohio, so the uniform depth of twenty-five feet may be maintained. The resolution also favored an international commission by the Governments of the United States and Great Britain and Can ada to determine the cost and best means of constructing and support of waterways international in their character.

OPPOSED LUBINS.

OPPOSED LUBINS. President Cannon then announced that i he discussion on staple agriculture Delegate Frank J. Cannon of Utah would speak in opposition to the resolution offered by the California delegation. In opening his remarks Mr. Cannon said it was not a pleasure for him to oppose any resolution which he thought might help the farmer, as he was brought up on a farm, but he believed this resolution was unjust and impracticable. Such a bounty as suggested would have to be a sliding bounty, governed by the distance the former lived from the market. This was impracticable. Other goods were also exported, and if an export bounty were paid on staple agricultural products, it should also be paid upon these other exports. gate Frank J. Cannon of Utah would speak

OTHER MATTERS. Mr. Bryan, who is also Chairman of the Committee of Resolutions, stated that the Committee of Resolutions, stated that the committee hoped to be able to make a partial report soon after the opening of the afternoon session. The committee had been at work all the morning.

The balance of the morning was taken up with the discussion of the staple agricultural question.

Mr. Cannon was followed by Delegate Wilson of South Dakota, who also spoke against the resolution.

Congressian W. J. Bryan of Nebraska also spoke against the resolution very briefly. Said he: "If I should speak my own mind I should say it was wrong to hold out to the farmer any delusive hope that he was to be benefitted by such legislation, but rather that he was to be benefited by abolishing the system at present in existence, which is protecting others to his disadvantage."

LATE SESSIONS TUESDAY. The sessions of Tuesday afternoon and evening were devoted to the discussion of the silver question. Ex-Gov. L. Bradford evening were devoted to the discussion of the silver question. Ex-Gov. L. Bradford Prince of New Mexico and Congressman W. J. Bryan of Nebraska championed the cause of the free coinage of silver, while Mr. George E. Leighton of St. Louis and ex-Gov. George T. Anthony of Kansas opposed the free coinage of silver. Ex-Gov. Prince reviewed the history of American money down to the demonetization act of 1873. He spoke of the relation of the debtor and creditor class, and maintained that the increased value of money falls with terrible weight and injustice upon the debtor classes. He argued that although the constitution provides that Congress shall not pass a law impairing the obligation of a contract, it has by its legislaton changed every contract by increasing the value of the money to be used. He safd that the causes of prevalent want are artificial, and that the need of the hour is an awakening of interest in the question in the East. Congressman Bryan spoke in behalf of the free and unlimited coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1.

Mr. Leighton in his speech opposing the free coinage of silver ma_ntained that the world has determined by experience that gold is the most efficient standard money for commercial intercourse; that silver has an extensive use, and nickel and copper a limited use, but a sound monetary system must bind them together by a real and not an artificial ratio. He said that gold answered this purpose better than saver. Mr. Leighton insisted that there was not a real scarcity of money, and he ascribed the low prices offering for cotton, wheat, corn, etc., to the sharp commercial into on the condition of the producing countries. Ex-Gov. Anthony made an argument coinciding with Mr. Leighton.

The back tax docket of the October term The back tax docket of the October term is being called in Judge Kiein's court. The cases are to recover unpaid taxes on personal property. A majority of them were continued by consent and the remainder are being fought on technicalities of various kinds. Mr. Herman A. Heausseler, who appeared for W. B. Anderson, raised the point that the bill on which Mr. Anderson is sued was not correct. This brought out a further point, suggested by the court, that the suits should have been brought on the original bills and not certified copies. Mr. Anderson 'obtained a judgment on the ground that he was a non-resident.

"Disfigured For Life"

Is the despairing cry of thousands Unsightly skin diseases.
Do you realize what this disfiguration means to sensitive souls? sensitive souls? It means isolation, seclusion.

It is a bar to social and business success. Do you wonder that despair seizes upon these sufferers when Doctors fail, standard remedies fail, And nostrums prove worse than useless ?

Skin diseases are most obstinate to cure or even relieve.

It is an easy matter to claim to cure them, but quite another thing to CUTICURA REMEDIES Have earned the right to be called The Festus Tragedy Continues : Great Mystery.

Was It a Foul Murder or Simply as Accident?

EVIDENCE GOES TO SHOW TRAT IT WAS PROBABLY THE FORMER.

Coin or Builion, Can Be Found, and Two Revelvers Are Also Missing -Ditch Is Positively Known to Have Had-Looking for Suspects.

FESTUS, Mo., Nov. 28.-Little, if any tht was thrown upon the death of Price itch, the saloon-keeper who was found arned to a crisp in the ruins of his saloon day morning, by the Coroner's inquest held yesterday afternoon. The testimony showed that Ditch, was last seen alive by people who knew him at 11 o'clock Sunday night and that a few minutes after 12 the saloon was seen to be on fire. No one went near the burning building, either citizens of this place or Crystal City, which is even nearer the saloon than Festus, until the building was completely burned.

It was developed at the inquest that what appeared to be a hole in the skull found in the ruins, while the skull still lay in the embers, was not a hole, but simply a piece of cinder that stuck to it. This disproves the theory that Ditch was shot through the head, but does not show that he was not murdered. The opinion of citzens is greatly divided as to how Ditch met his death, whether he was killed by robbers and the building set on fire to hide the evidence of the crime, or whether the fire and the subsequent burning of Ditch was purely accidental.

The saloon was owned by Williamson & Ditch Williamson heire.

the subsequent burning of Ditch was purely accidental.

The saloon was owned by Williamson & Ditch, Williamson being Ditch's father-inlaw. They have been running the place for seven months. The building was located ten or fifteen rods from the Festus station of the Bonne Terre Railroad and about half way between Festus and Crystal City. The saloon and the station were thus a good quarter of a mile from any other buildings. Saturday night an uncle of Ditch's, Silas J. Fults, stayed all night with Ditch at the saloon. He says he is satisfied he heard some one trying to get in during the night, but upon his speaking to Ditch the noise ceased. He also says that the saloon came near catching fire on Sunday morning when they started the fire.

DITCH'S FINANCIAL CONDITION

Sunday afternoon Ditch left the saloon in charge of his brother-in-law and went up to see his wife and two children, and also to see Williamson, his father-in-law and partner who has been confined to his bed for several weeks. The statement he made to his partner, so Williamson stated to the correspondent of the Post-Dispatch, was that he had about $100 in silver on hand, in the cigar-boxes under the ice-box, pay checks of the Crystal Glass Co., which he had cashed for the men, amounting to about $200, and a couple of hundred in greenbacks. His partner cautioned him about being robbed and Ditch replied:
"If they rob me they'll have to get the money off my dead body."
Ditch then went back to the saloon and waited upon customers until about 11 o'clock, when the last two or three, who are well-known laboring men, departed together. He was then about to close up.
Ditch had two 38-caliber revolvers, which he always laid on a chair at the head of his bed.
The fire was noticed-about 12:10 or 12:15-by

The body was almost completely burned up. The liver and a few of the heavier organs remained. The skull was so burned that part of it fell in ashes when picked up. Not a trace of the silver money can be found, either as money or melted metal. The only melted metal found is what appears to have been the tops of seltzer bottles. The brass clasps to the big pocket-book in which he kept his big money and checks was found in the ashes near the body. The lock to the door was found and the bolt was back, showing that the door was unlocked. bolt was back, showing a unlocked.

the theory of those who think it an acent is that after his customers went out, the fell asleep in a chair. He awoke with a building full of smoke. He started to building full of smoke. He started to be a local where his money was, but fell the building full of smoke. He started to the place where his money was, but fell suffocated by the smoke and was burned.

They think when the fire is finally out the builion will be found to have run through to the bottom. The fact that the watch was taken strengthens the theory. The er theory is that he was murdered and building set on fire. The absence of the r and the fact that neither of the two livers can be found give weight to this ry. If it was a murder the deed was ainly done by some one whom Ditch
v and who was familiar with his habits.
ere has been no question raised as to w and who was familiar with his habits, ere has been no question raised as to identity of the remains found in the s. # KOCH ARRAIGNED,

But After Taking Evidence, He Discharged-Alten Items.

ALTON, Ill., Nov. 28.-Wm. Koch, who was arrested last week on a State warrant charging him with appropriating funds be-longing to the local Painters' and Decocharging him with appropriating funds belonging to the local Painters' and Decoraters' Union, was arraigned before Justice Brandewiede yesterday afternoon, and after considerable evidence was introduced the case was dismissed. Koch received a sum of money which was to be used in paying the expenses of the Alton delegates to the annual convention of the Painters' and Decorators' Union at Cleveland, O. Koch being employed out of the city at the time turned the money over to T. La Flam, who was a member of the local union. Koch has a receipt for the money, but La Flam is in Lidgerwood, N. D. Efforts will be made to compel him to return the money. Mr. Andrew Mullen, an old resident of North Alton, died Monday night, after a long and painful illness, which was caused by a paralytic stroke, which hie was taken with about a year ago. Deceased was 70 years of age and was born in Scotland. The time for the funeral has not been decided upon.

The members of the Crescent Athletic Club have made extensive preparations for the opening of their new quarters in the McPike Building, which will take place tonight. Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Kauffman will entertain a number of their friends this evening at their home on Henry street, in honor of their guests, Miss Annie Chew of St. Louis and Miss Elizabeth McGrew of Lexington, Mo.

Legislature.

In a conversation with a Post-Dispatch re-been a continuous member of the Utah Legislature.

In a conversation with a Post-Dispatch reporter he spoke with a great deal of pride of the country he represents. "Wasatch County," he said, "has a population of about 4,000, of which 2,000 reside in Heber City. There we have a church which cost $25,000, a Court House costing $5,000 and a public school building that cost $18,000. I think our educational system is second to none in the country, every child between the ages of 6 and 18 years being compelled under the free-school law of Utah to attend school. Another thing, and one which I suppose you will consider rather strange, is that we have neither a jall nor prison in the town, the sole reason being that we have absolutely no use for such a thing. The fact that we have no bonded indebtedness upon either country, towns or school districts shows that our country is in a fairly prosperous condition."

Continuing the conversation, Bishop Hatch said the people of Utah are looking forward with a great deal of interest to the time when the Territory will be made a State. An enabling act to that effect was passed by Congress last August, and on Nov. 6 delegates were elected to meet next March and frame a constitution for the State of Utah. After this constitution is formed it will be submitted to the people for ratification next August; the action thereof will be presented to the President of the United States, and, if approved by him, he will declare Utah a State by proclamation. In that event members of the Legislature and Congress will be elected next November and they will meet the second Monday in January, 1896, in Salt Lake City. The first business of the Legislature will be to elect United States Senators, after which the country will start on a new era of prosperity as a State.

Bishop Hatch says that he has every reason to believe that he will be nominated for the office of Lieutenant-Governor when the nominations for the election of State officers are held.

Chicago Ministers Probably Beforred to the Non-Sectarian Church. The controversy that the St. Louis church without a godhead caused among the Chi-cago ministers Monday has given rise to much speculation in this city as to what church was meant, and as to what the Chiagosns think of it. Rev. Dr. M. M. Parkhurst of the Evanston Avenue M. E. Church said that if non-believers succeed in doing is much good for humanity as Christains he would like to bid them Godspeed. Other Chicago ministers thought that the non-be-lievers were like defective lightning rods or fire insurance policies. The general no-tion in St. Louis is that the Chicagoans referred to the non-sectarian movement in St. ferred to the non-sectarian movement in St.

Louis. Rev. J. W. Caldwell, assistant pastor of the Non-Sectarian Church, was of the opinion that the Chicago ministers meant by the church without a godhead the movement promoted by Rev. Dr. R. C.
Cave, in which Mr. Caldwell is a helper.
"We have associates in Chicago," said Mr.
Caldwell. "They are Rev. Lenken Loyd
Jones and Rev. W. H. Thomas. A convention of non-sectarians was recently held in Streator, Ill., and I suppose that this and our work in St. Louis stirred up the Chicago ministers. We have no objection to being called the church without a godhead. We ask no questions as to what is a man's ask no questions as to what is a man's creed. We do not believe in a trinitarian godhead, and whether a person believes in one god or in three, or if he worships a ask no questions as to what is a man's creed. NERVOUS DEBILITY

TYRRELL SCORED.

Some Merchants' Exchange Members Express Their Opinions of Him.

The addresses delivered by Rev. F. G. Tyrrell of the Central Christian Church at the meeting of the Evangelical Alliance Monday afternoon, in which he condemned the commercial exchanges of the country charging that the business conducted by them was nothing more or less than gam bling, and intimating that the operators or 'Change were not church members, has aroused no little indignation among the members of the Merchants' Exchange in this city. When asked what he thought of the admembers of the Merchants' Exchange in this city.

When asked what he thought of the address in question, C. H. Spencer of the Spencer & Harlow Commission Co., who is one of the most prominent members of the Merchants' Exchange, spoke his mind as follows: "A man that makes such statements does not know what he is talking about. He may know how to preach, but he knows nothing whatever of commerce. The present method of handling grain is the most economical that has ever yet been devised. We buy and sell grain for future delivery, and for this future delivery we enter into a contract which the courts have decided is perfectly legal. If that is gambling it is more than I can understand. I am a church member myself, but I have no patience with a man, even though he be a preacher, who will make such statements." Thomas Akin, another prominent member of the Exchange, characterized Rev. Tyrrell's address as that of a crank, saying that he had not the patience to discuss the william T. Anderson, ex-President of the

that he had not the patience to discuss the subject.

William T. Anderson, ex-President of the Exchange, in giving vent to his opinion on the subject, said: "There is not a man operating on 'Change whose word will not go farther than that of the man who made these statements. There is not a class of men in the world who are more honorable or whose word is taken to such an extent as the members on 'Change. There a man's word means something, and he has to make good any statement he may make. Such people as Rev. Tyrrell are narrow-minded and have lived only in their-own sphere and know nothing whatever of the outside world. There is no gambling on the Merchants' Exchange, as there is never a contract that is made that is not fulfilled. As far as the members of the Exchange being church members is concerned, I can safely say that among the operators on the floor may be found some of the stanchest supporters and pillars of the various churches in the city."

President William G. Boyd of the Exchange said that at least twenty-we operators on 'Change were officers in churches in the city, while at least nine-tenths of the members of the Exchange were actual members of the different churches in town.

Although in Its Infancy the Results Are Wonderful.

No gathering East of Denver has ever had its attention so persistently and forcibly called to the subject of irrigation as the trans-Mississippi Congress has through the presence and active propagandizing of the forty-five delegates from Utah. From reports of methods coming in vogue in that and the neighboring State of Colorado, it is impossible to escape the conviction it is impossible to escape the conviction that irrigation is in its infancy.

It has already produced a $100,000,000 crop on 3 per cent of the arable area of Colorado. This is not the present limit of natural irrigation by water flow, but the indications are that that period is past. There are now building in Utah and Colorado immense works which will probably in time multiply many times the irrigable area as it is now known. The immense fall of water from the mountain sides is to be utilized in generating electricity with which to pump the water from the running streams to higher surface levels than can be reached by a natural drain without the construction of very costly tunnels, etc. It seems likely, according to Col. C. L. Stevenson of Salt Lake City, Consulting Mining and Hydraulic Engineer, that present methods may be in time abandoned for artificial pumping in many cases where the long carriage of water in ditches is too wasteful. Cheap methods of pumping are being introduced that make the use of electricity in this field feasible.

Utah irrigation is regarded as probably the most successful in the world, beings based on co-operation. The new constitution will embody the present non-partisan irrigation commission as a controlling factor to prevent the natural waters of the State from being monopolized and to protect capital from exploitation by land grabbers.

DEFENDING DISHOREST LOAVES. In an attack on Delegate Henner's "honest loaf" ordinance the Republic displays an ability in crowding profound ignerance or wilful misreprese pecial wonder.

It objects to the bill on the groun that it is doubtful if a baker can be com pelled to make loaves of a specified shape, size or weight, and because he cannot be forced to sell bread at a price fixed by the Municipal Assembly. It doubts if a policeman is competent to judge of the quality of bread. It objects to the creation of a new office and the employment of politicians as inspectors. All of these objections might be valid the bill. But as a matter of fact the proposed ordinance does not contain a single provision to which the Republic objects. It does not specify the shape or bare-faced lies.

In response to the proposition to sul stitute an underground for an overhead trolley for the Forest Park branch of the Suburban Railway on Union avenue President Turner stated that the under ground trolley was not a demonstrated uccess, but was still in the experi nental stage. He objected also to the change of cars from an overhead to an underground system on the ground that t would be difficult and slow.

The Post-Dispatch calls Mr. Turner's attention to the fact that an underground trolley has been in operation on part of an electric street railway in Washington, D. C., for about two years The other part of the road is run by overhead trolley and it is claimed that the cars are changed from one to the other within ten seconds. It is asserted by the officers of the road that experience proves the underground trolley to be superior in all respects to the overhead system. It is cheaper, more easily operated and less liable to accident. It $50,000 per year, he lives rent free, gets his is more reliable in bad weather. If these claims be true there should be no delay in the adoption of the underground system, for, from the standpoint of the public, it is greatly preferable to the overhead system. The overhead system is unsightly and obstructs the streets with poles. It is dangerous because of the occasional breakage of the wires. It is subject to many disadvan tages Railway companies having the overead system naturally object to change, but the subject should be taken in hand by the municipal authorities. The truth of the statements about the underround system may easily be tested. What about the victims of Pullmanism and its corollaries?

The widows and the orphans, the overworked and underpaid, the unemployed and their families, grandparents and babies in arms loudly cry for bread, and Mr. Cleveland talks about the bountiful harvests that have rewarded our husbandry.

Millionaires and tramps, beggars and paupers, involuntary poverty, nakedness and the homeless everywhere, and we are reminded of our national prosperity, our virtue and our intelligence.

Look around to-day! In our civilized society the old allegories yet have a meaning, the old myths are still true. Into the valley of the shadow of death yet often leads the path of duty, through the streets of Vanity Fair walk Christian and Faithful, and on Greatheart's armer ring the clanging blows. Ormudy still fights with Ahriman, the Prince of Light with the Powers of Darkness. He who will hear, to him the clarions of the battle call. How they call, and call, and call till the heart swells that hears them. Strong soul and high endeavor, the world needs them now. Beauty still lies imprisoned and iron wheels go over the good and true and beautiful that might spring from human lives.

Let us be thankful that things are not worse.

The New Scarlet District.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: It is rumored that the demi-monde are about to settle down on Walnut street west of Ninetenth street, right in the he St. Louis, near the Grand Union Station, the pride of our city. In the name of many citizens we desire to protest against this open descration of any street leading to it, especially one which is a thoroughfare. What will the stranger think of us? Besides they will be situated only one-block from the Lincoln Public School, where our daughters will have to pass in going to and from school. St. Louis, near the Grand Union Station

Why not put the fallen women on so Why not put the fallen women on some street more distant from the center of traffic? Locate them on Walnut and only a few months will elapse before they will have to be removed. There are many localities where they will not have to be disturbed for years to come, but for the sake of the pride we have in St. Louis we petition your able paper to denounce this attempt to spell the city in whose welfare we are deeply interested. Yours respectfully, MANY CITIZENS.

Practical Charities. To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ild it not be wise to inaugurate a few practical systematic charities for the lef of the poor this winter? If some man relief of the poor this winters it some man of means would open a coal depot where the poor could buy fuel at cost, much real good would be accomplished. Last winter the experiment worked well in Brooklyn. A food and clothes depot on the same conditions would be equally valuable. We have some willing philanthrophists who, no doubt, would gladly undertake this work.

er Fine Theatrical Enterprise Di a Natural Death,

About every once in so often some one starts a new theater in St. Louis. For a number of years these laudable enterprises have never gotten any further than the printing of beautiful pictures in the newspapers of the way the buildings are going to look when they are finished. going to look when they are finished. Sometimes they do not get that far-vide Percy Denton's Sixth Street Koater & Blals, A scheme even more recent than this was the one to transform the old Jewish Synagogue, at Seventeenth and this was the one to transform the old Jewish Synagogue, at Seventeenth and Pine streets, into a grand palatial concert hall. The plans were duly published, with a picture of the new place of amusement, but nothing has been heard of it since. Manager James J. Butier of the Standard Theater now announces that he has been visited by one of the promoters of the scheme, with a view to getting him and his father to take the property off the hands of the original boomers. Mr. Butier, when asking in some surprise about the new concert hall, was informed that the scheme never got any further than the paper the plans were drawn on. He did not give his caller much encouragement about buying the property, and it is easy to believe that he is not sorry the new house is not to be built.

A 12-YEAR-OLD'S EXPERIENCE. Everybody remembers "Le Petite Freddie, the little singer and dancer who for a num ber of years has been seen on the variety stage, his last appearance in St. Louis Maving been at the Union Trust Roof Garden. For a 12-year-old Freddie has had a lot of experience. He was born in Asia Minor, showed with a circus in Jerusalem and traveled the wide world over. His father, Harry Clark, the advance agent of Hyde's comedians, was in St. Louis last week and tells of his lad's most recent experience. At the beginning of the season the little fellow started for South America with a vaude-ville combination. Somewhere in Venezuela the company got stranded, and Freddie was in a tight place. Luckily, the fire-eating "Salambos" had a little money, and they fixed up a combination, taking Freddie with them over to the West Indies. When last heard from he was in Trinidad. His father seems to think it the most natural thing in the world that his boy should be singing and kicking off there all alone. ber of years has been seen on the variet

MANAGER PRICE ON "1492."-Manager rice, of the "1492" show now playing at the Olympic, takes exception to the tenor of the criticism of his attraction, appearing in Monday's Post-Dispatch. Mr. Price maintains that it did an injustice by causing the public to believe he and Messrs. Jefferson, Klaw and Erlinger were using the name of Mr. Rice with which to draw patrons when the show did not otherwise merit it. While admitting the cast as it now appears is not the one which made the hit in New York, he asserts that it was never advertised as the New York cast, and declares that the company was selected by Mr. Rice, that the scenery and costumes were prepared under Mr. Rice's direction, that Mr. Rice is equally interested financially with Jefferson, Klaw Erlanger and himself, and that but for the necessity for Rice's presence with "Little Christopher Columbus" in New York the manager would accompany "192." This statement is cheerfully printed. It shifts the responsibility for an inferior attraction from the shoulders of Jefferson, Klaw, Erlanger and Price to those of the managerial speculator, E. E. THE FINAL REHEARSAL.-The final rehearsal of the Choral Symphony Society for to-morrow night's concert, will be held to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock sharp, in Music Hall. As large an attendance as possible is especially requested. It will be for soloist, chorus and orchestra. The singers and musicians will be seated on the stage in accordance with a plan which though new in this city, is much used abroad. It will place the heavier orchestral instruments where they will not be liable to drown out the singers. Mr. George Hamlin, the new tenor from Chicago, is now in town, the guest of Mr. E. C. Simmons, and those who have long known and admired his beautiful voice and artistic method, are anticipating as great a success for him here as he achieved last season in Chicago. LA JUNTA, Colo, Nov. 28.-A traveler from Southern California died on the train from the South just after reaching this place last evening. The porter of the car in which he died says the sick man to he had been operated on for cancer and was on his way to a Denver hospital. He on his way to a Denver hospital. He had no friends with him and was riding on a charity ticket, on which he had signed his name, Charles Ross. He was dressed in plain working clothes and was about 35 years old. As he had no money he will be buried in the Potter's field. A paper in his pocket bore the name of Charles H. Ross, 61 South Spring street, Los Angeles, Cal.

So far as known there is no truth in a report which was started to the effect that the man said before he died that he was the long lost Charlie Ross.

idgo Edmunds Says He Knows She Perjured Herself in the Burglary Case but Relieves She Tostified to the Truth in the Brown Murder Case-Character of the Woman on Whose Testimen the Lives of Two Men Are to Be Sac

Annie Boghiens, the negress, whose tes imony was instrumental if not the chief actor in the conviction of Henry Kalser and Jacob Hensle, prisoners at the Four Courts, under sentence of death for the bru-tal murder of Edwin E. Brown in this city, Courts, under sentence of death for the brutal murder of Edwin E. Brown in this city, on March 2, 1893, is responsible for one of the most unique situations in modern criminal jurisprudence.

Four men are now serving a five-year sentence in the penitentiary at Jefferson City for a robbery, which she graphically detailed to the jury, which convicted, and the judge who sentenced them. After the expiration of the term of the Criminal Court, at which they had been tried, Judge Henry L. Edmunds discovered that the Boghlens woman's evidence was false in every particular. He made strong recommendation to Gov. Stone for the pardon of the quartette, but the Chief Executive declined to interfere with a co-ordinate branch of the State Government, the case being then in the Supreme Court on an appeal. As Judge Edmunds' discovery of the falsity of the evidence of Annie Boghlens could not be embodied in the transcript of the case, the Supreme Court could not consider it, and as there were no errors in the trial of the case in the lower court, its decision was affirmed. Gov. Stone afterwards refused to exercise executive clemency, and the four men are still convicts. The woman, who, according to Judge Edmunds, perjured herself, has never been arrested, and in less than a year figured as a witness in one of the most sensational murder trials ever held in St. Louis. Stranger still, Judge Edmunds again presided, and believes that the woman's testimony, in view of corroborative evidence, was true.

HER PERJURED TESTIMONY. Judge Edmunds describes the circumstances which led to his discovery that Judge Edmunds describes the circumstances which led to his discovery that Annie Boghiens had committed perjury in his court as follows:

"Five men were tried in my court for robbery in the first degree about two years ago. It was soon after I went on the bench. The defendants were Mooney, Chadwick, the two Cantlins and a man whose name I do not recall. The prosecuting witness was named Bradley. The scene was, I think, at the southwest corner of Eighth street and Franklin avenue. Annie Boghiens was the only other witness for the State. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty as to all the defendants. I did not deem the testimony sufficient against the man whose name has escaped me, and on a motion for a new trial for all the prisoners, I granted it in his case, but refused it for the others, who were sentenced to the penitentiary for five years each, and are now at Jefferson City. When Mr. George Burnett, their attorney, presented a bill of exceptions at the next term of court for my signature, in order to perfect his appeal to the Supreme Court, I did not agree with him in his version of the testimony in one or two particulars, and made changes to conform to my recollection. It was something in reference to the locality, and the relative position of the rooms in the house where the robbery occurred. After the adjournment of court Mr. Burnett remarked to me that he was convinced that he had been right, and that I was wrong. I then said to him that as it was a pleasant day and as I was going up that way, we would, if he were willing, visit the spot and see which was mistaken. Upon my arrival I found that my position was the correct one, but I made the startling discovery that there was not a word of truth in the testimony given against the defendants by Annie Boghiens. The robbery, according to the testimony, occurred in the hall on the second story of the building. The entrance fo on Franklin avenue, about twenty feet from Eighth street at the time, and she minutely and graphically detailed the robbery in a way street. Annie Boghlens swore that she was on Eighth street at the time, and she minutely and graphically detailed the robbery in a way that was strongly corroborative of the evidence of Bradley, the prosecuting witness. For instance, he testified that he carried his money in a pouch. She swore that she saw the robbers take a tobacco sack from his breast pocket, and abstract from it some new bills. To have seen into that hall from the point at which she swore she witnessed the robbery, she would have had to have been thirty-six feet tall and had the power of looking through brick walls.

COULD NOT SAVE THEM. "I was powerless to give the defendants new trial, as the term at which they were ried and sentenced had expired. All I could do in the case was to send up the case on appeal to the Supreme Court. The bill of exceptions did not show the falsity of the no legal way to incorporate it. I wrote a strong letter to Gov. Stone, recommending strong letter to Gov. Stone, recommending the pardon of the four men. I informed the Governor of my discovery of the falsity of the woman's testimony and laid stress upon the highly corroborative nature of it. He declined to take action while the case was pending in the Supreme Court on the plea that he did not like to interfere with a co-ordinate branch of the State Government. The Supreme Court, having only the testimony upon which the jury had based a verdict before it and finding that I had not erred in the admission of evidence or in my charge, affirmed the decision. Gov. Stone again declined to pardon the defendants, and they are now in the Penitentiary.

Stone again declined to pardon the defendants, and they are now in the Penitentiary.

"The testimony in the case, with a statement from me that Annie Boghlens had lled, was laid before him. I infer that he considered the testimony of Bradley, the prosecuting witness, as conclusive as to the guilt of the men. Had I been in possession of the facts brought out on my visit to the place of the robbery with Mr. Burnett, I should have granted a new trial for all five of the prisoners.

"As I said, it was too late for me to act when the discovery was made. I had no jurisdiction then. Bradley's testimony was given in a straightforward way and was strongly against the defendants. The jury might have found them guilty on his unsupported testimony, but I am not prepared to say how much they were influenced by the evidence of the Boghlene woman, who appeared as an unimpeached witness.

"When Mr. Burnett, in cross-examining her, asked if she were a married and the control of the control of the married of the m BELIEVES HER TESTIMONY IN MUR in the burglary case. That put me on my guard in the murder trial and, unless has eviderce had been strongly corroborated by unimpeached with the strongly corroborated was a remarkable trial in many ways. Of the twenty witnesse but few remembered meaning the others or any of the others there. This Boghiens woman picked out Ben Yon Phul as one who was present. Mr. Yan Yalkenburg said he did not see Mr. Yon Phul yet, according to the latter's testimony, they passed each other. The Boghiens woman was seen by Mr. Yon Phul. The defendants put a man named Dashman on the stand to prove that the Boghiens woman was not at the scene of the tragedy. His testimony convinced me that she was. She was the only witness to testify that she saw something gleam like brass knuckles when Mr. Brown was first attacked. Dashman swore that when he reached Mr. Brown the latter told him he had been knocked down by a blow with brass knuckles when first assailed. Unsupported, the testimony of the woman Boghiens would have hadno weight in my court, but, corroborated as it was, it was allowed to go to the jury in the Brown murder case. Her occupation was confessed by her. She made no pretense of respectability, and the jurors were in a position to take it for what it was worth. Such was not the state of affairs in the burglary case, where she failedy declared that she was a good and honest woman. Her testimony was not only false, but her position was false. Nothing was but her position was false. Nothing was clared that she was a good and hones woman. Her testimony was not only false but her position was false. Nothing was ever done to punish her for perjury, their so much false swearing in the courts."

MR. DUGGAN ON HER TESTIMONY. Attorney Andrew Duggan, who assisted in the preparation of the defense of Kaise and McDonald, declares that the test mony of Annie Boghiens in the Brow nurder case was manufactured, and say that an analysis of it will convince any one that she did not see the tragedy. He that an analysis of it will convince anyone that she did not see the tragedy. He said:

"Her evidence was too precise and minute to be true. However unimportant the details, she was always ready with them. She is an ignorant woman: She can neither read nor write, but knows figures. She is a self-confessed strumpet and the keeper of disreputable houses. No one knew she was a witness for fifteen days after the Brown tragedy. She says in explanation that she did not know that the man had been killed at Franklin and Garrison avenues on March 2, 1833, until a white gentleman turned to her one day while she was in a grip car of the Franklin avenue line with the bald statement, "That man's dead. She then came forward with testimony that had great weight with the jury in finding Kaiser and Hensie guilty. Is it not ridiculous to suppose that the grip car story is true? How did the man know that she was there? Why don't he come forward, for he must have seen the murder if he saw her there? Her explanation of her presence at the tragedy is unreasonable. She says that she came down on the Franklin avenue line from 466 Easton avenue on the might of the Brown murder accompanied by a 5-year-old child. She intended to visit a colored preacher named Reynolds who lived in East Bell street, between Garrison and Ewing avenue, up which she might have turned to reach East Bell street, her objective point. At Leffingwell and Easton avenues she glanced at the clock in the Sheridan House and noticed that it was 3:43. She continued on Leffingwell and Easton avenues she glanced at the clock in the Sheridan House and noticed that it was 3:43. She continued on Leffingwell avenue, when she got to Franklin avenue she concluded to forego her visit to Preacher Reynolds because East Bell street, which is really an alley extending through two blocks, was so dark. She had decided to got 6313 North Eighth street, where she lived and maintained an immoral resort.

ALLEGED INCONGRUITIES.

"Thstead of going one block over to Morgan street, where she

"Instead of going one block over to Mor gan street, where she could have caugh a downtown car, she proceeded up Franklin avenue towards Garrison avenue and chanc a downtown car, she proceeded up Frankin avenue towards Garrison avenue'and chanced to witness the tragedy in which Mr. Brown lost his life. Would any sane person have gone directly away from their objective point twice in such a brief time? When she and the 5-year-old child got off the car at Easton and Garrison avenues her objective point was the home of Reynolds. Yet she walked two blocks beyond it. When she arrived at Franklin and Leffingwell avenues, she changed her mind and determined to go to 813 North Eighth street. Again she walked away from her objective point. All this time she had with her a 5-year-old child, and according to her testimony, the clock at the Sheridan House pointed to 9:33, a time when children of that tender age are sleepy and are not disposed to walk without vocal protestations. This ignorant woman remembered more of the details than men of intelligence who testified. Mr. Von Phul, Mr. Starke, Mr. Rowland and others were unable to recall things which she glibly recounted. Why that woman swore before the Coroner's Jury that the grip car in which she rode on the night of the tragedy was No. 33. Her character is of the lowest; she has been proven a perjurer in the burglary case against Mooney and others, yet on her testimony men are found guilty and sentenced to be hanged. I am confident that she against Mooney and others, yet on her testimony men are found guilty and sentenced to be hanged. I am confident that she swore falsely, and am satisfied that the other colored women, Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. Rabinson, were, while honest, mistaken in their identification of the defendants. Mrs. Chapman claimed to identify Kalser, Hensie and McDonald as the murderers of Edward E. Brown. Mrs. Robinson could partially identify only Kalser, whose back she saw. The Boghiens woman was sure of all three, and related a conversation which took place between her and McDonald, while, as she says, he was standing guard, while the others were murdering Mr. Brown. Now, if her identification was to be relied on at all, it was certainly in the case of McDonald, to whom she swore she was face to face, yet he was the only one of the trio acquitted.

A CHRONIC WITNESS.

A CHRONIC WITNESS. "The police were also active in the proution of the defendants. Rewards, aggre gating over $3,000, were offered for the con iction of the Brown murderers. I do no harge that they resorted to neans to get testimony, but I feel certain that the Chapman and Robinson women could easily have been 'coached' into identifying the men. I believe that they are honest women; but their intelligence is not of a high order, and they could easily be imposed on. I have no hesitation in charging that the evidence of the Boghiens woman was manufactured. Annie Boghiens was a chronic witness for the prosecution in Kansas City. I have a letter from the Clerk of the Criminal Court of that City, in which, he says that she appeared as a witness for the State in at least a dozen cases; and he admits that his examination of the t.Louis."
Assistant Circuit Attorney Jesse A. Mclonald said that he considers Annie Boglens a bad, dangerous woman, whose unorroborated testimony is worthless. "I elieve however," he continued, "that Kaier and Hensie were properly convicted of the murder of the late Edwin E. Brown."

Trans-Mississippi Delegates Discuss Afternoon Trains.

The Present Dalays Experienced in Southwest Missouri.

HOW ST. LOUIS TRADE WOULD BE IN-CREASED IN ARKANSAS.

Judge Wm, Leach of Capa Girardoan, S. C. Henderson of Joplin, J. C. Stewart of Webb City, Judge Brewn of the Cherokee Strip and Other Delegated Express Strong Opinions on Afternoon Traine-St. Louis should and Must Have Them to Retain Mer Present Trade.

The delegates to the Trans-Mississippi Congress are much surprised that a city of the size and importance of St. Louis should be without an afternoon train service to the country lying tributary. Most of the delegates are business men and their opinions will be valued accordingly, as they have a horough knowledge of the advantages to be derived by a city of commercial importance from a good afternoon mail and passenger train service. "Nowhere in the State are we in greater need of an afternoon train service out of St. Louis than in the southeastern part," said Judge Wm. V. Leach of Cape Girardeau, "and I think you will agree with me when I tell you that we can send a etter to Chicago and one to St. Louis at the same time and we can get an answer from Chicago at the same time or earlier than from St. Louis. How can St. Louis ex pect to hold the trade of the southeastern part of the State if the people of that disrict find it as easy and as expeditious to do ousiness with Chicago as with St. Louis? Yes, sir; I favor an afternoon train out of St. Louis over the Belmont branch of the Iron Mountain Railroad and so does every citizen of every town on the Iron Mountain line between St. Louis and Cape Girardeau, and we not only favor it, but we want it and must have it. Cape Girardeau does a big ousiness with St. Louis, and the present train service between these points is so pool hat we can make almost as good time by taking one of the boats.

MAIL DELAYED. "There is but one train out of St. Louis a Mountain and, consequently, if a merchant Mountain and, consequently, if a merchant in St. Louis mails a letter for the Cape after 9 o'clock in the morning it has to remain in the St. Louis Post Office until 7:40 o'clock the following morning, at which time it can go out on the Cairo Short Line and reach us almost at noon. If it went by way of the Iron Mountain it would not reach us any earlier. The same is true of a letter mailed to a St. Louis merchant in the Cape—it has to remain in the post office nearly twenty-four hours. This is why we can acceive an answer from a letter to Chicago as quick as from St. Louis.

"If there was an afternoon train service out of St. Louis at about 3 o'clock in the afternoon our merchants could go to St. Louis, arrive there at noon, transact their business in three hours and return by the new afternoon train, arriving at the Cape about 9 o'clock at night. Such a service would confer a great benefit on both the St. Louis merchant, and the same may be said for all the towns along the line reached by an afternoon train."

Mr. Leon J. Albert, of Cape Girardean, and Dr. D. A. Glenn, also of the Cape, heartly endorsed Judge Leach's statement of the case.

The views of the people of Southeast Missouri with reference to an afternoon train service out of St. Louis are identical with those of the residents of Southwest Missouri along the 'Frisco and Missouri Pacific Rallroads.

ADVANTAGES TO JOPLIN. n St. Louis mails a letter for ADVANTAGES TO JOPLIN. Mr. S. C. Henderson, a prominent mine owner at Joplin, Mo., said: "I think an af-ternoon train service out of St. Louis to Southwest Missouri would be a great boon that part of the country, and also to to that part of the country.

St. Louis. It would get the mail and the papers into Joplin before breakfast. The trains now get in at 10 and 11 o'clock. St. Louis traveling men making Joplin, Webb City and all the towns in the Southwest would greatly appreciate such a train. For example, they come in on the Missouri Pacific now and arrive in Joplin at 11 o'clock. The morning is gone, and the afternoon is never so good to do business as the morning hours. If they come in on the 'Frisco they get in about 10 o'clock, and may see a customer or so before noon. A morning train would give them the entire morning to see their customers, and the difference in the amount of business they would get by seeing customers at the proper time would fill the strong boxes of the St. Louis merchants to overflowing."

Mr. J. C. Stewart, President of the Hechange National Bank of Webb City, we of the opinion that the more mail as passenger trains run between St. Louis at the Southwest the better it would be the business interests of the country.

THE CHEROKEE STRIP. St. Louis. It would get the mail and the

THE CHEROKEE STRIP. Judge Baxter Brown of the Cherol Strip thought that St. Louis ought by means to have afternoon trains running every line leading out of the city. For city of the size and importance of St. Louis outerpt longer to carry on its immer business relations with the country trutary by means of two trains a day each line, morning and evening, is a pie utary by means of two trains a day a each line, morning and evening, is a pies of foolishness of which we out in the Che okee Strip would not be gullty. Why Che cago will get all your business if you don get a few afternoon trains."

There are eight delegates to the Train Mississippi Congress from Fort Smith Ark, and they are all as wide awake an enterprising as the thriving city from which they come. The Post-Dispatch reporter met three of the delegation at the Planters' Hotel. Messrs. G. H. Scrutos of the Fort Smith Dally Times, S. P. Da of the Arkansas Developer and George Williams of the Fort Smith Elevator Co. Mr Williams expressed himself as heartly favor of more trains for St. Louis an Fort Smith.

ON BOARD GEN. HASAGAWA'S TROOP SHIP, Bound for Port Arthur, Oct. 20. via San Francisco, Nov. 28.—I have just received word by a courier that Great Britain has again been snubbed by Japan. The British Minister at Tokio attempted prevent the sailing of the invading army or Port Arthur, by asking the Japanese ent whether England might be authorized to say to China that Japan would be willing to end the war on condition that a generous indemnity fund should be paid and all claims of suzerainty over would be willing to end the war on condition that a generous indemnity fund should be paid and all claims of suzerainty over Corea abandoned forever. The Minister urged upon Japan the desire of England to be a mediator. In reply the Japanese Government declared that no terms of peace could be arranged at such a critical moment. He could, therefore, make no reply at present to the proposition of her majesty's Government, but advised patience. In a few weeks, he thought, there would be an opportunity to discuss the matter. And so the British attempt to delay the invasion of Chisa failed.

All approaches made by Great Britain are viewed with suspicion and aversion. The Japanese believe; fusily or unjustly, that the British representatives in both Japan and Corea have been sending secret information for the use of the Chinese army. Nothing but the open armed interference of the British will prevent the Japanese from pressing on to Pekin. Everything peints to such an interference. I know that after the first victory in China the Japanese Government would have been secretly delighted to have some great European power step in and bring the war to an end. The Chinese have lost Corea and they will have to pay a big indemnity. Japan has no desire to engage in a long war. She has won what she was fighting for—a dominant position in Corea and recognition as the leading military power in Asia. Unless China surrenders, Japan is bound to go on with the war at an enormous cost. The interference of England at a time when the Japanese armies everywhere are triumphant and China is humbled in the dust would be regarded as a blessing in Tokio. It is unnecessary to say that China also would welcome interference and peace. Nothing can arouse a genuine fighting spirit in her.

England as a disruption of the Chinese Emplere. But Russia—where does she stand? The British say the Russians will back England. The Japanese laugh at this claim, but I know they are uneasy. The Russians themselves are silent. However that may be, we have the ed

CHEMULPO, Corea, Oct. 27, via Sar Francisco, Nov. 28.-Now is the time for an erican statesman to show himself. One of the great issues of the struggle in Asia will be the royal concessions for mining and railways. "There is a strong suspicion abroad that this is a war of conquest," I said. "That unless the other nations step into the fight there will be no possibility of independthere will be no possibility of independence for Corea."

"I know what our foes are saying," said the Count, with a savage twinkle in his eyes, "but Americans ought to be the last to believe such stories. When I was in control of the foreign policy of Japan, Corea made her first treaty and, upon my advice, that treaty was with America. I felt that in order to insure the independence of the monarchy it was impossible to have absolute sovereignty in Corea for the King unless he was recognized by some Western power, and the American Republic, having no political designs in the East, Western power, and the American Republic, having no political designs in the East, was my choice. The United States ought to feel a special sense of responsibility. I feel that America will be the friend of Japan in the work we have undertaken. So far as lies in my power I shall restore the King's authority and his prestige, but, at the same time, there will be some unavoidable interference in Corea's affairs."

This is all very well, I am satisfied that Japan is sincere in her desire to civilize and raise up her prostrate neighbor. But how about the railways and gold mines? Are all the privileges to go to Japan in defiance of the "most favored nation" clause in our treaty? I have the highes uthority for saying that the King Corea would like America to share in any ions made to Japan. Indeed, his majesty's inclination was clearly indicated several years ago when an American went from Seoul to Washington with a direct offer of mining and railway monopolies in Corea to the United States or a company of citizens recognized by the United States. Mr. Bayard sneered at the proposition and refused to give any assurances to the Wall street magnates who were prepared to take the vast enterprise up, that the Government would lend its friendly influence to their interests. Two years afterward, when Mr. Blaine heard of the matward, when Mr. Blaine heard of the mat-ter, he expressed his regret that such a glorious opportunity had been missed, and wanted to negotiate for a renewal of the offer, but it was too late. The door is about to open again. The storming of Chin Lien Czeng Castle on the other side of the River Yalu by Yamagaha's army yesterday morning does not mean that the Japanese army intends to march into the heart of Manchuria and fall into the winter trap which I outlined in a previous dispatch from the front.

The fortress was too close to the Yalu to be left in the hands of the Chinese and would have been a centinual menace to the winter camp of the Japanese on the frontier. The Japanese have no intention of moving against Moukden, knowing that the capture of the ancient Manchu capital and would arouse suspicion and the bitter CREELMAN opposition of Russia.

WARSHIPS BEEDED.

An American Tells of Perils Faced by Fereigners at Shanghel.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Harper's Weekly for December 1 will publish a letter from ulian Ralph, its correspondent in Shanghai China, written in the latter part of October. It is in part as follows:
"The war began in August, and I am writing this in the last half of October, yet writing this in the last hair of October, yet up to this time the only American war ship that has been seen in Chinese waters is the old Mississippi ferry boat Monocacy—an ark, a house boat, or to give it its utmost due, a river gunboat. One needs to be here, to fully realize the extent of our national error in keeping our few warships at home and in sending them to Europe, where the diplomats already appreciate our strength better than it is appreciated by our college professors, while in China, where we used to lead the world as traders, our strength has wasted to almost nothing with the failure of our Government to make its greatness respected.

"I am safe here at present because there are Russian and French and English warships here. The other day, when we Americans were struggling for fair play for two Japanese, we were all safe because the commander of a French warship offered us his ervices. Fancy this in a city that manages half the commerce of Asia, in a city where the towering warehouse of Russell & Co. suggests what Americans once and the peaks volumes on the decay of our influence.

"When L500 Japanese assembled in Shanghai to avail themselves of protection offered by the United Streament they up to this time the only American war ship

"When 1,500 Japanese assembled in Shanghal to avail themselves of protection offered by the United States Government they said to Mr. T. R. Jernigan, the United States Consul General, that they were delighted to throw themselves wholly in our care, certain that no harm could befall them. It was acknowledged that as merchants and students they were free to remain here in the position of wards of our Government. Suddenly two Japanese were arrested in the French third of the foreign settlemnt of Shanghal. In the French jail they were kept twenty-four hours, and searched and cross-examined. They asked to be sent to our Consul, and this was done. The Chinese Taoutal (governor of the region) demanded their surrender as spies.

"Mr. Jernigan, supposing that American protection was not an empty phase, made a desperate struggle to keep them in his control long enough for our Government to devise some means of giving them a full and fair trial and then sending them to Japan if innocent, or to the Chinese officials if guilty. He cabled the Minister at Tokio, and young Mr. Denby at Pekin asking them to assist in obtaining delay and devising genuine protection. He could not, under diplomatic rules, cable Mr. Gresham direct. Tokio and Pekin worked in harmony with Shanghal, until word came from Washington that protection to Japanese meant the surrender of such people to their angry enemies. Mr. Gresham cabled this definition in a brief order to give up the sples.

"We who are in Asia knew what that meant. We trust, amid our shame and sorrow, that our officials at home did not know as much. The Taoutai, his Secretaries and the Viceroy all repeatedly assured the Consul General that if the Japanese should be surrendered they would not be killed. They were to be kept as prisoners to the close of the war. Not only was this assurance repeatedly given before the surrender, but afterwards, when the two students were delivered to the Chinese the officials made the bargain obligatory upon themselves by repeating their promis

SPORTING NEWS.

George Work, Lewis Thompson and Frederick Hoey, well-known amateur wing shots, will leave New York next month to take part in the international pigeon shooting contest at Monte Carlo on Feb. 4 and 5. take part in the international pigeon shooting contest at Monte Carlo on Feb. 4 and 5. All the crack wing shots of Europe will be there, and American shooting skill will be pitted against the best that the old world can produce. The pigeon shoot at Monte Carlo is one of the great sporting incidents of the year in Europe. The two big days are when the Grand Casino prizes, aggregating nearly 50,000 francs, are shot for. The Grand Casino prize, for which the New Yorkers will contest, is divided into four prizes as follows: First prize, a sliver trophy and 20,000 francs and 85 per cent of all the entry money; third prize, 2,000 francs and 25 per cent of all the entry money. The rest of the entry money fourth prize, 1,000 francs and 15 per cent of all the entry money. The rest of the entry money goes to the winner of the first prize. There are always 100 entries at 200 francs each.

Each contestant shoots at twelve pigeons in all, as follows: Four pigeons on the first at a distance of twenty-six metres; eight pigeons on the second day at a distance of twenty-seven metres. If the winner of the Grand Casino prize of 1883 is one of the entries he is penalized one meter. With the loss of three pigeons know the shooter retires from the contest. It is understood that the visit of Messrs. Work, Thompson and Hoey will have an important bearing on the proposed international pigeon shoot between England and America in 1886 in this country.

The Washington University and Christian Brothers College teams will meet at Sportsman's Park at 2:30 in the afternoon. There is considerable interest locally in the outcome of the Harvard-Pennsylvania game, and the struggle between the brawny representatives of the Missouri and Kansas Universities. Many St. Louis enthusiasts will go to Kansas City to see the Columbia boys contend with the Kansas team. If the Missouri boys win they will lead in the race for the championship of the Western Universities. Missouri and Nebraska are now tied with two victories each.

Gregg's story is about as follows:

"Several months ago a German stair-builder of Chicago, whose name he proounces as 'Rakeoff,' leased from me the nounces as 'Rakeoff,' leased from me the racing properties of Ancile for several months. Several weeks later a man named Luth (a son-in-law of 'Rakeoff') came to St. Louis and bought of W. J. Alderson, the owner of Dan Kurtz, that worthless cripple, paying $100 for him. At the purchaser's request, Alderson shipped the real Dan Kurtz to Chicago. These were the first steps toward running the 'ringer.' The reason for purchasing Kurtz was to have possession of him, and thus prevent the fact

UNITED EVANGELICAL CHURCH.

at Napierville, Ill. NAPERVILLE, Ill., Nov. 28.-A special session of the General Conference of the United Evangelical Church will be held here, beginning to-morrow. Delegates will be present from Pennsylvania, Maryla Illinois, Ohio, Nebraska and Oregon. This special session is made necessary by the schism in the Evangelical Association. In speaking of the split in the association, a "The chief and final cause of the division of this vigorous denomination was the assumption of unwarranted episcopal powers on the part of Bishops Esher and Bowman, who claimed the right to interpret church law in their own interest, even to the rending asunder of annual conferences and the exclusion of large numbers of members and preachers without trial and the organization of new conferences without authorization by the General Conference, whose province alone was to establish bodies of this kind. By a mere technicality the courts decided in favor of the element in power, although the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania also declared such action to be wholly unauthorized by the discipline, the conference so organized an irregular body without authority or ecclesiastical authority under the discipline, and the suspension and expulsion of presiding elders and others as a clear usurpation of power and the sentences so pronounced as having no force or effect. While the decision of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania was in favor of the party in power, the expenses of the suit were placed on the winning party. "The chief and final cause of the division effect. While the decision of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania was in favor of the party in power, the expenses of the suit were placed on the winning party.

"The new denomination, the General Conference of which meets on Thursday, represents the American element in principle and largely in constituency. It claims a membership of 61,000, based on the last official reports; 641 itinerant and local preachers; nearly 800 Sunday-schools, with a membership of 78,000; a woman's missionary society, having a membership, in its adult, mission and junior departments, of about 5,600; a young people's organization, called the Keystone League of Christian Endeavor, having a membership of over 10,000. There are three, schools for higher education, and a publishing plant at Harrisburg, Pa, having a circulation of periodicals of over 100,000, with besides, another German publishing plant in Chicago.

"The object of the General Conference is to formulate such rules and regulations as may be necessary to perfect the organization of this new denomination. The old disciplinary doctrines will be embodied in the new code of laws, and such provisions will be incorporated as will forever prohibit the exercise of arbitrary episcopal power. The timerance will be continued, although there is a disposition to modify it. The bishops who will preside are Bishop Dubs, D.D., of Chicago, Ill.; Bishop C. S. Haman, Reading, Pa., and Bishop William Stanford, Harrisburg, Pa."

Mr. Gernes personally served the notice on Mr. Mulpersonally served the notice on Mr. Mulvihill while the latter was pursuing his duties as Assistant City Attorney in the Second District Police Court Wednesday morning. In his petition Mr. Gernez alleges that some 9,000 illegal votes were cast for his opponent; that if the election had been conducted in a fair and just manner, he (Gernez) would have been successful. According to the official count, on which he secured his certificate of election, Mr. Mulvihill beat Mr. Gernez over 2,000 votes. Mr. Gernez has not filed his petition in the Circuit Court. It is customary, however, in election contests to give preliminary notification to the defendant before filling the suit.

Gov. Walte of Cologado, who is at present in St. Louis attending the Transmississippi Congress, when asked regarding the question, spoke as follows:

"The law of the State prohibits gambling. I am sworn to enforce the law, and as long as I continue Governor I am going to do my best to see that the law is obeyed. I am not at all surprised that such a petition has been presented, and, I understand perfectly the motives of the persons who signed it. It is a mere question of money with them. The banks desire the gambling houses open, as the proprietors of these houses deposit large sums of money with them, and the merchants want them open. with them. The banks desire the gambling houses open, as the proprietors of these houses deposit large sums of money with them, and the merchants want them open, as they say it helps their trade a good deal, arguing that when a man wins he is very apt to spend more or less of his winnings immediately. In my opinion gambling-houses are far from being a benefit to anyone."

HIRSCHFIELD DIVORCE CASE.

The Defendant Placed on the Stand-Story of Ante-Marriage Relations. FARGO, N. D., Nov. 28.-Manager Hayrood, of the Western Union office, was ne first witness in the Hirschfield divorce the first witness in the Hirschfield divorce case to-day. He was ordered by the court to bring in all the telegrams sent by Aaron Hirschfield and attorneys to witnesses and others who gave revolting testimony against his wife.

Mrs. Aaron Hirschfield was then called to the stand. She told her story of meeting Hirschfield, it tallying with that of witnesses who were examined yesterday. Hirschfield got acquainted with her through giving her sister typewriting. He began to call on her frequently. After a couple of months acquaintance he asked her to marry him.

call on her frequently. After a couple of months acquaintance he asked her to marry him.

She stated that she had known him too short a time. He said if she refused to marry he knew of only one way to compel her and that way was to get her into his power. She ordered him to leave the house. That was the first and last time unkind words passed between them. Next day Hirschfield called on her and asked her to forgive him, and she did. Illicit-relationship was commenced in August. About the middle of the month they left for Chicago to get married. She had never written to him for money, nor threatened him with exposure. He had never given her any money, but had paid out considerable to provide for her enjoyment. They occupied the same berth on the way to Chicago and stopped at the Leland Hotel, registering as Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, Hirschfield explaining that L. H. Hirschfield was watching them and this would throw him off the scent.

They occupied the same room. The next morning they were summoned to the Auditorium Hotel by Mrs. L. H. Hirschfield whose detectives discovered their whereabouts. When they arrived there, a stormy scene ensued. Mrs. Hirschfield said that he hought she had told him not to attempt going with women. Aaron said that he intended to marry Miss Hogan, and would do as he pleased. Mrs. Hirschfield said that he would not while she was living.

They then adjourned to the Leland Hotel, while Sadle Hogan arrived. Witness testified to the same story told by Sadle. Mrs. Hirschfield said that he would not while she was living.

ated the statement that he was his own boss, she siezed Miss Hogan's umbrella and broke it over his head.

Mrs.L. H. Hirschfield then insisted that they go to a lawyer's office and draw up a settlement. Aaron and Dell finally agreed to do so in order to throw Mrs. Hirschfield of the track. The agreement to separate was drawn up and signed by all of them. Miss Hogan left for Chippewa Falls, Wis., and Aaron for New York. Witness said that the previous night Mrs. L. H. Hirschfield came to her room and stayed all through the night, locking the door and putting the key under her pillow, to prevent her from gettling out to carry out the marriage programme. When she arrived at Chippewa Falls she found telegrams waiting her from Aaron. He inquired after her health, etc. Telegrams and letters came every day. Finally Aaron came from New York and together they returned to Helena, where they passed as an engreed couple. After several-weeks they again for Chicago, where they were rried. They went to a justice's office in arriage. Witness did not see any men ned to the teeth" leading Aaron. He vered questions promptly.

om the Justice's office they went to a dry store where he purchased her a lond and plain gold ring, with the engraved on the inside. Then they inned to Helena. He then bought a seal ack and other presents. Aaron ened rooms at the Helena Hotel. They be together almost continually, Aaron ye going to the bank at intervals during day. He was very kind to her. They upied the same apartments; he did not point to the hand not spoken to him since his arriage, except to call him frightful mes, and he was urged to leave her.

A day or two later Aaron came in very inch depressed and said "the old woman," sening Mrs. L. H. Hirschfield said she ould never allow him to live with her aron said the old wolf wanted her money so to her children. Aaron was sick all ght and bell attended him. #### NICHOLAS II. POPULAR.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 28.-The larity of the Czar increases daily. Nothing has done so much to popularize him as his unaffected ways and the fact that he is unaffected ways and the fact that he is dispensing with the military police body-guards of the palace. His order withdrawing the troops from the line of route upon his wedding day has produced a good effect. The crowds were unable to believe that they would be allowed to stand and witness the procession without the invariable hedge of soldiers, and when they saw that this was a fact the populace were frantic with delight and expressed their satisfaction in a thousand ways.

There is no doubt that a marked change has taken place everywhere in St. Petersburg life in consequence of th Czar's admirable policy.

THE MARKETS.

ST. LOUIS, NOV. 28, 1894 The crop situation appears to be more than serious; it is becoming aarming. If the reports now coming in from many different ocalities in the winter wheat belt as to the effect of the long drought, are to be believed. The Southwest is the worst sufferer. In the last Texas weekly bulletin it says: "The continued drought is becoming distressing to the farmers in some localities and in retarding farm work generally." It reports the ground too dry and hard for plowing, wells going dry and water for stock getting the ground too dry and hard for plowing, wells going dry and water for stock getting scarber. Of what very little has been sown so far, and that sown done poorly, in some sections the plant not germinating for lack of moisture Letters received here from the territories report the land dry as a bone and the crop either already damaged or on the eve of being so. The plant stunted in growth, where above the ground, with no roots to speak of. Central and Western Kansas reports wheat injured and a considerable portion actually killed. The whole crop is suffering and needs immediate heavy rains. All over this State and Southern Illinois and in sections south of the Ohio, drought conditions prevail and the crop needs rain badly.

An English correspondent of the London Corn Trade List says that English farmers are feeding wheat to cattle and pigs and buying less malze and oil cake. Although the wheat crop is larger than last year the deliveries to millers will be less. This statement is said to be borne out by all correspondents. in eastern and midiand counties.

A correspondent of the Northwestern Mil-statement is said to be borne out by all correspondents in eastern and midland counties.

A correspondent of the Northwestern Miller says that the Government correspondent for Jackson County, Ill., estimates that the amount of wheat fed in that county will be about 250,000 bushels out of the total of 1,000,000 bushels raised.

To-morrow is Thanksgiving Day and a national hoilday. All exchanges and banks will be closed and no markets will appear in the Post-Dispatch.

The latest reports make the stocks of wheat in Odessa 2,650,000 bushels, barley 650,000 bushels, and rye 373,000 bushels.

An Omaha message states that Nelson Morris is paying 50c for corn to feed several thousand cattle he has in Washington County, Neb.

A Ft. Scott (Kan.), grain dealer, reports he sold twenty cars wheat from his Coffeyville district to two Texas mills at a price equal to 57½c in St. Louis.

Most of the corn arriving here is from east of the river and most of that from Illinois. The larger proportion is grading No. 2.

Flour is so intensely dull at Minneapolis that the mills will run on Thanksgiving Day so as to keep up with their orders.

Northwestern advices are that farmers' deliveries of wheat are small, but the movement to market from country elevators is expected to continue liberal for the balance of this year.

CORN.—Something of a falling off in receipts and the higher prices for wheat gave this market more tone at the opening, which was at 1/2c advance. The receipts and the higher prices for wheat gave this market more tone at the opening, which was at 1/2c advance the received that the sectimate, though at four Western markets 656,000 bu received. Cables reported Liver-pool 1/2d higher, but slow, and London firm.

There was a slight easing off Trom the better opening, gained strength later on, and May abvanced until at close if had buyers 1/2c and strength later on, and May abvanced until at close if had buyers 1/2c and over 1/2c in price.

Futures—December opened at 41/2c and sold to 41/2c to 41/2c. May opened at 45/3/2c and sold to 41/2c to 45/2c and at close 45/3/2c bid.

UATS—The speculative market showed steadiness, but was very quiet and only a few trades made.

Futures—May was held at 32/3c before and on call, afterwards selling at 32/3c, and still later at 32/4c. On call Nov. offered at 30/3c and Dec. at 31c.

Spot grades—Vesterday's prices obtainable on call for regular, and E side grades below No. 2 1/3c higher, as some competition for them. No. 2 and No. 2 white sold regular at 41/3c and No. 3 and No. 3 white salable regular at 41/3c, but 1/3c paid for E side.

Samples—Received 7d sks. 80 cars local. Not so much for sale and local millers buying white, though only moderately; local feeding wants light. Prices about steady. On track No. 3 white ear at 38c this side. Sacks returned soft colory 42/3c mixed 43c, white 43/3c.

Spot grades—No. 2 offered on call at 30/4c in D. F and E side, buyer of the specular seadiness, if not actual firmness. The first sale for shipment in some time was reported, and local freeders bought more freely, but the bulk of purcha at 32c.

RYE—Entirely neglected on call and no mention of it afterwards. For No. 2 52c is obtainable, but none to be had at that.

BARLEY—Steady, with demand fair. Offerings larger, both spot and to arrive. Sales: 17 cars Minnesota at 57%c.

HAY.

Received, 520 tons; shipped, 100 tons. It was too near the close of the month for local feeders to invest extensively, and the market was quiet, though steady prices obtained. Choice feeding stock sells readily, and fancy green prairie scarce and sought after; would bring $10.50@11. Offerings consist chiefly of timothy, the supply of all kinds prairie being small.

Sales: Track and warehouse—This side: Prairie—1 car packing at $5, 1 common at $7.50, 2 do. at $8, part car about prime at $8.75, 1 prime at $9, 1 choice at $10. ## MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH,

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.-Wheat quiet here CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—Wheat quiet here to-day, opening a shade higher than yesterday's close. The diminished Northwestern receipts, stronger cables than expected, reports of serious damage to growing wheat in Kansas and good foreign buying at this point were bullish features, but the sentiment in the pit was bearish, the visible supply seemingly outweighing the other features. May started at 59%c and advanced to 59%c. Later the market receded to 58%c. Corn was steady and dull .May opened a shade higher at 45%c, declined %c and advanced to 48%c%c. Oats were dull at last night's closing price; May, 33%c. Provisions were strong on lighter hog receipts than expected; Jan pork, 10c higher and advanced to $12.02. Later the market eased off to $12.02%. Jan lard opened 5c higher at 6.57%c.

NEW YORK—The Northwestern dividend had very little real effect, because the reduction about met expectations. The Eric report had an unfavorable effect in London, and was expected to be a factor in the prices for American securities this morning. The day's buying was called covering. Commission houses complained of lack of outside orders. The bond market was irregular, but generally without marked change. The loan crowd showed most stocks to be lending at from flat to 1.255. It was generally assumed that the short interest had been reduced. The strength of the Coalers and Sugar in the last hour created a little more hopeful feeling. we are connected by special leased wires with the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Exchanges.

FARMER DILL WHIPPED BOTH. James Gray and George Wilson Were

KOKOMO, Ind., Nov. 28.-James Gray and George Wilson of Burlington, the former a Justice of the Peace, are on the Last night they went to Lafayette, and while there imbibed somewhat freely. On the way home they saw an old farmer by the roadside and thought to have som whips. They attacked the man, George Dill, a prominent resident of the place, but soon discovered they had aroused the wrong soon discovered they had aroused the wrong passenger. Dill displayed remarkable puglistic abilities and gave both assallants a tremendous beating. 'Squire Gray's jaw was broken in three places and soon both lay vanquished at his feet. Dill then picked up the unconscious forms of the men, threw them in the wagon and gave the horse a cut and started them for home. Wilson will recover, but the physicians say Gray can live but a few hours. He was injured internally. Farmer Dill has not been arrested and probably will not be, as the attack was wholly unproved. He never met his assailants before.

Political Complexion of the Next House of Representatives.

Unofficial List as Submitted to Printer by the Clerk,

BEPUBLICANS WILL CONSTITUTE MORE THAN TWO-THIRDS OF THE BODY.

They Will Have 244 Members, the Democrats 104, Populists 6, Si ver 1 and Vecant 1-Democrate Secure but 13 in Northern States and Have Six Solid Delegations-Republicans Will Have Mineteen Solid Delegations-Twentyeight Contests Are Possible-General Washington Gossip.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 28 .- Not until to-day have the officials of the House felt sufficient confidence in the unofficial list of Representatives in the Fifty-fourth Congress to send it to the printer. As finally prepared the list shows 244 Republicans, 104 Democrats, 6 Populists, 1 Silver and 1 vacant. The Republicans will con-stitute more than two-thirds of the House membership. Sectionally, the Republican majority will be divided as follows: New England States, 26; Old Middle States, 66 Middle Western States, 92: Far Western States, 28; Southern States, 32.

'The Democrats secure only thirteen memers in the Northern States; California and Massachusetts contribute one each; Illinois. Ohio and Pennsylvania two each, and New York five. The Democrats secure six solid State delegations, those of Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Misssippi and South Carolina. The Republicans secure nineteen solid delegations, those of Connecticut, Dela-ware, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New Hampshire, ew Jersey, North Dakota, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

In all twenty-eight contests may be made In all twenty-eight contests may be made from the Southern States and a majority of them are to be instituted by Republicans against Democrats, but it now appears probable that there will not be so many. Mr. Myer, who it was expected would wage a contest for the seat from the Sixth Arkansas District, is now quoted as saying that he will make no effort to secure the seat in the face of the fact that his opponent is credited with 3,000 majority. Late advices also indicate that Lee Crandall will abandon the contest against Geb. Wheeler for the seat from the Eighth Alabama District.

COMMERCE IN FRANCE. Depressed Conditions Charged to th

New Tariff Law. WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 28 .- There seems to be a curious resemblance between the commercial situation in France and that in the United States, arising from diametrically opposite causes, as set forth in the report to the Department of State by Steph-en Angell, United States commercial agent at Roubaix. He quotes from a leading French authority, as follows:

"The commercial situation is grave, or it appears to be, which is the same thing for the general public. There are protectionists and free traders, both of whom seek the so according to their respective lution according to their respective views of the financial policy now in force, which is decidedly a protectionist one. The financial crisis is contemporaneous with the inauguration of the new tariff, and the supporters of the tariff are called on to explain the fact that from the commencement of the year 1892, which was the date of the enactment of the new tariff, until Sept. 30, 1894, there was a falling off in exports of more than 6,899,000,000 francs. Bad times exist. They began with the new tariff; therefore, the tariff is the cause. Such is the reasoning which the free-traders put forward; but the protectionists point to the fact that France does not suffer alone from fact that France does not suffer alone from the dimunition of the exports—that England, a country with a free-trade policy, has suffered as well, and that the depression which exists in France is experienced everywhere. It is generally admitted, nevertheless, that the tariff is responsible for the falling-off of 689,000,000 francs in exportations to Spain, and 80,000,000 francs to Switzerland, during these thirty-six months—and the result is that the free-traders and the sufferers from the depression in general are crying out loudly, and are demanding a change in the existing legislation."

OF INTEREST TO THE SOUTH. WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 28.—A sign of the times that should be of special interest to the South is conveyed in a repor to the State Department by United States Consul Chatham of Canada on the results of the new tariff in Western Ontario.

Among other things he notes the fact that the large stave industry there, with the mills in Michigan as well as Ontario, have resumed manufacturing, but have been compelled to give the benefit of the removal of the 10 per cent duty to the consumer. Contracts for next year will show a saving to the consumer of from 5 to 10 per cent, and with only five years' timber ahead to cut from it is not likely that it will go any lower. The capitalists behind this industry are buying timber tracts in the Southern States for future supply. Canadians are also beginning to buy yellow pine from the Southern States in larger quantities for flooring, joisting and inside finishing. The freight from Alabama is about equal to the cost f. o. b. there, but its sale in Canada will steadily increase. Besides cherry and walnut, Norway pine, oak and poplar used in Canada must come from the United States in future, as the native stock is parties. of the new tariff in Western Ontario. n Canada must come from the Unit states in future, as the native stock early exhausted.

STATE NAVAL MILITIA.

Important Suggestion in Connection

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 28 .- In co. ection with the strong presentation by cretary Herbert of the necessity for the procurement of a number of new torpedo oats, a proposition has been made to him ular in the vast interior of the United States, where it is now almost unknown; and, more important still, the navy may states, where it is now almost unknown; and, more important still, the navy may hold at its disposal a large force of trained saliors, particularly expert in the torpedo service, which there is now no adequate opportunity to develop.

The plan, in brief, is for the Government to build a large number of small torpedo boats, and to lend them to the States' naval militia, to be used at any point on rivers, lakes, or even canals, where water may be found to navigate them. There are very few States where the smaller boats of this kind may not find some water to navigate, and, with the inducement of the free use of such a craft, it is not doubted that naval militiamen will be forthcoming in States where there is no other means of drilling them. Competent engineers and ordnance officers would be detailed to instruct the militia. In the use of these boats, and the men would be free to avail themselves of them for drills, and even for excursions, with the understanding that they should employ no outside help, but would perform every office on the boat themselves, attering, firing and running the engines.

It has also been established that the smaller torpedo boats can be moved from point to point quickly by rail; so that, in case of war, a great number of these indist and the smaller torpedo boats can be moved from point to point quickly by rail; so that, in case of war, a great number of these indist part of the smaller torpedo boats can be moved from point to point quickly by rail; so that, in value. One of the strongest features of the plan (which, of course, would require Congressional sanction) is that, owing to the cheapness of the small torpedo boats, as compared with a full-sized war ship, a very moderate appropriation—not more than would be required to build one battle ship—would procure fifty of the torpedo boats.

Negroes Arrested by the Police While Making an Attempt at Burglary.

At 2:15 a: m., while Officers Hennelly and Regan of the Third District were walk-ing on Franklin avenue, near Ninth street, their attention was attracted to a loud noise made by some one hammering on a door. They ran to the place where the noise came from and discovered two negroes, who proved to be Thomas Allen and John arter, in the doc Carter, in the doorway of David Schatsker's second-hand store, $20 North Ninth street. The officers claimed the negroes were trying to force the door of the establishment open. They selzed the two darkeys and, as they did so, Allen whipped out a Smith & Wesson revolver and endeavored to use it on them. Officer Hennelly knocked the weapon out of the prisoner's hand and both men were taken to the Third District Station. Warrants for attempted burglary will be applied for.
